TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

A reasonable amount of success seems to have attended the efforts of the Board of Education to add to the other branches of education provided for the youth of the country some measure of instruction in the useful arts. When the President of the Board was at Lahainaluna lately Mr. Hitchcock was able to give him gratifying assurances of the interest taken by the boys in learning constructive arts. The original supply of tools sent there had already been twice supplemented, and still he felt constrained to ask for more, as every boy now wants to be allowed to handle a tool. This request of the principal has, we understand been complied with. From the workshop at Lahainaluna many other schools have been supplied with necessary furniture, such as desks, blackboards, etc. The agricultural work, which was always a feature of this institution, is still continued, and the taro required for the use of the school and certain other things are raised by the labor of the boys themselves.

At the Reformatory School, field work has always been in vogue. Almost all the supplies for the school are thus provided, also a certain quantity of bananas for the market. At various times other work has been carried on. So far as carpentry is concerned, this has been revived under the present Board. Forms, tables, desks, shelving and a very creditable bookcase have been turned out by the elder boys. Besides this, much repairing has been done, the lofty fence which now surrounds the school yard has been erected and some sheds built. There is one carpenter's bench, and the supply of tools is sufficient to keep about half a dozen of the lads busy at the same time. This, as things stand at present, seems to be about all the implements that can be utilized, as a large majority of the boys are too young to use them properly. Altogether about eight of the older ones have become capable workmen. The beds for the establishment are also made on the premises and some of the boys are quite proficient at the art.

Experiments like these can only be successfully carried on at boarding schools. Work of the kind has been inaugurated some time ago at the Hilo Boarding School, which is an establishment not under the control of the Board of Education. Help has been given to the school in the way of funds, and an application for tools is under consideration, and will no doubt be acceded to. In connection with certain day schools, also some field work is carried on. The law allows vacant lots of Government land to be so utilized until wanted for other purposes. The great difficulty in the way of the extension of this system lies in the absence of reliable markets for the produce.

What has been attempted may therefore be said to have met with encouraging success. If, however, Technical Education is to become a reality here, an Institution devoted to it must be started at the capital, where alone a sufficient mass of population is gathered together. Here it would not be necessary that the pupils in many branches of instruction should be boarders. By a system of evening classes the school could be made useful to a large number who have passed their school age for primary education, and among these would probably be found the boys and men who would reap the largest amount of benefit from it. The idea of establishing of such a school has the warm support of the President and the other members of the Board of Education, and they proposed to ask the Legislature for funds for the purpose during the last session. In the general paring down of the estimates, before they were presented to the Assembly this item with some others of importance had to be set aside. We sincerely hope that it will be revived, and that within a moderate space of time we may see an Institute of Technical Education in our midst. We feel sanguine there would be no lack of pupils.

RECEPTION AT IOLANI PALACE.

On Monday evening, pursuant to announcement, His Majesty the King held a reception at the Palace in honor of his Birthday. The Palace was brilliantly lighted for the occasion, and the principal avenues in the Palace grounds were illuminated by torches placed at short intervals. The King street and Richard street gates were thrown open, and a large crowd of onlookers scattered through the lighted portion of the grounds to watch the arrivals, and enjoy the cool air of a pleasant evening. The Royal Hawaiian Band was in attendance, and discoursed a variety of lively music. MISREPRESENTATION.

Wednesday's Gazette contains the following: "Had not the Minister of Foreign Affairs retreated from his position, neither the Foreign Commissioners nor the Consular body would have attended the reception." The editor of the Gazette does not appear to be very well informed as to the functions of a Minister of Foreign Affairs. The above statement is an entire misrepresentation of facts. The Minister of Foreign Affairs had nothing to do with the arrangements for the reception on the King's birthday, and took no position from which he had to retreat. The notice for the reception at the Palace on the 17th inst. was issued by His Majesty's Chamberlain, and was identical in terms with the one issued by the same functionary for the reception at the Palace on 28th Nov. last year. According to official etiquette, when His Majesty is pleased to receive the representatives of foreign nations the Chamberlain informs the Minister of Foreign Affairs upon the subject, and the latter conveys the information to the members of the Diplomatic and Consular bodies. The function of the Minister of Foreign Affairs in such matters is but to see that the representatives of other countries have a properly discriminating distinction shown to them at all State ceremonies to which their presence is invited, and this duty the Minister fulfilled to the entire satisfaction of the gentlemen interested.
